Reaffirming Trade Ties

In conjunction with Chinese President Xi Jinping's state visit to Singapore, an upgrade to the Singapore-China mutual recognition arrangement (MRA) was signed. Minister for the General Administration of Customs of the People's Republic of China Yu Guangzhou also led a delegation to pay a courtesy call on Minister for Finance Heng Swee Keat, and had a bilateral meeting with Singapore Customs Director-General Ho Chee Pong. Read more about the upgraded MRA on page 01.

As part of our continual efforts to remain business-friendly for traders, Singapore Customs conducted the Traders' Satisfaction Survey in 2015 to better understand customers' experiences, needs and expectations. For its pro-enterprise efforts, the department was presented with the Pro-Enterprise Panel-Singapore Business Federation (PEP-SBF) award and Public Sector Pro-Enterprise Initiative Award (Silver). Find out which initiative clinched the latter award on page 06.

The International Customs Day 2016 saw 13 officers being awarded with the World Customs Organisation Certificates of Merit for their contributions to Digital Customs – this year's theme. Flip to page 08 to find out who the awardees are and what they do.

Singapore Reaffirms Trade Ties with China

In conjunction with Chinese President Xi Jinping's state visit to Singapore, an upgrade to the Singapore-China mutual recognition arrangement (MRA) was signed.

The General Administration of Customs of the People's Republic of China (GACC) recently restructured its authorised economic operator (AEO) programme and renamed it the Interim Measures on Enterprise Credit Management programme. The restructured programme allows more business types, including those along the supply chain that are registered with the GACC, to apply for AEO status.

Minister for Finance Heng Swee Keat and Minister for the GACC Yu Guangzhou signed the upgraded MRA on 7 November 2015 at the Istana, witnessed by Prime Minister Lee Hsien Loong and President Xi.

This MRA supersedes the arrangement first signed in 2012 and reaffirms both customs administrations' recognition of each other's AEO programme and commitment to maintaining global supply chain security.

The six-member delegation from the GACC, led by Mr Yu, paid a courtesy call on Mr Heng and had a bilateral meeting with Director-General of Singapore Customs Ho Chee Pong.

During Mr Yu's courtesy call, Mr Heng highlighted the high level of collaboration between Singapore and China, which was evident by the number of agreements signed by the two countries during President Xi's state visit. Mr Heng lent his support for closer collaboration between Singapore Customs and the GACC, and said that such collaboration will support the “One Belt, One Road” initiative. The initiative seeks to improve connectivity and bring about development among countries within the region.

At the bilateral meeting with Singapore Customs, Mr Ho and Mr Yu reaffirmed the longstanding and warm bilateral relations between Singapore Customs and the GACC. Mr Ho and Mr Yu were both confident that the signing of the upgraded Singapore-China MRA would further facilitate trading between the two countries.

Ideas were also exchanged on possible initiatives to bring bilateral cooperation and collaboration to a higher level, such as the sharing of experience on the Single Window system, which will help industries in both countries to increase trading through improved, simplified and transparent customs procedures.

The GACC delegation also visited PSA ports, where they were briefed on port operations by Singapore’s largest port operator. i

THE SINGAPORE-CHINA MUTUAL RECOGNITION ARRANGEMENT (MRA)

The Singapore-China MRA was first signed on 30 June 2012. Under the MRA, both countries recognise the compatibility of their AEO programmes – Singapore’s Secure Trade Partnership (STP) programme and China’s Measures on Classified Management of Enterprises programme. Companies certified as AEOs for their robust security practices under these two programmes are recognised by both customs administrations to be of lower risk.

AEO companies enjoy faster customs clearance not only when exports leave their own country, but also when they arrive in the other MRA country. These companies can therefore better plan their cargo movements and enjoy cost savings, which could otherwise be incurred due to port delays.

China was Singapore’s largest trading partner in 2015, with bilateral trade in goods valued at S$123.5 billion. The Singapore-China MRA aims to facilitate and secure trade between both countries.

New Customs@SG Mobile App: Services at Your Fingertips

The latest service offering by Singapore Customs allows travellers to pay duty and/or Goods and Services Tax (GST) on their overseas purchases before arriving in Singapore. The app also lets the public provide timely tip-offs on customs offences and feedback on customs matters.

Developed to provide travellers with an easy-to-use self-service tool to transact with Singapore Customs, the Customs@SG mobile app will come in handy for travellers who need to make payments for their overseas purchases that have exceeded their duty-free allowance and/or GST relief.

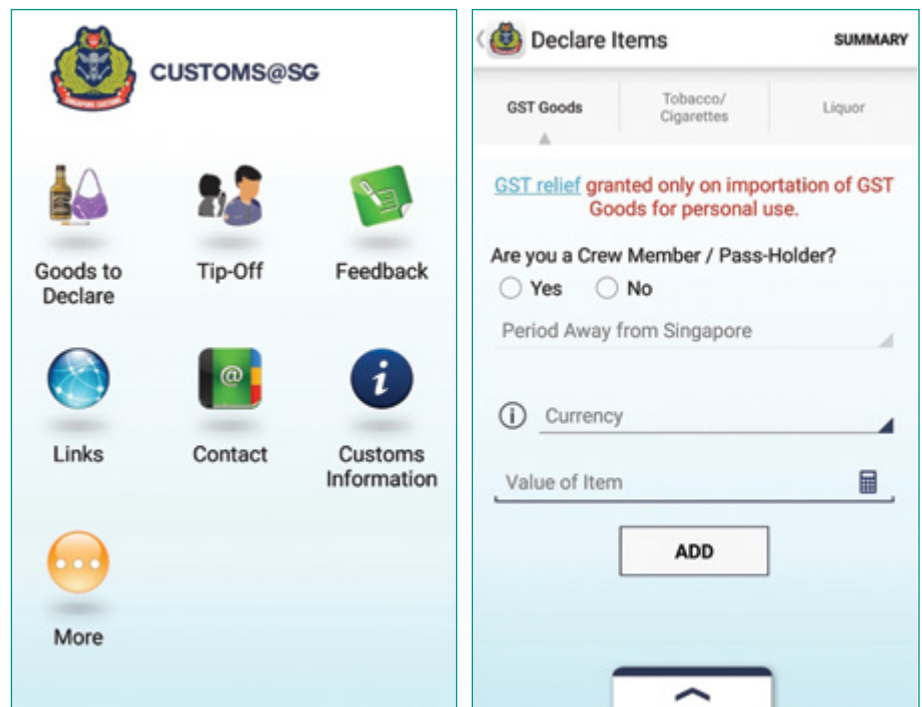

Prior to this, travellers would have to declare and pay the duty and/or GST for their goods at the Customs Tax Payment Office or a Self-Service Tax Payment Kiosk in the arrival hall of the checkpoint in Singapore.

But now, with the Customs@SG app, they can do so on-the-go without having to stop at our Customs office or kiosk to make the payment.

Once the payment has been made, the app will churn up an e-receipt that can be stored in the travellers' mobile phone. On his arrival at the checkpoint in Singapore, travellers can proceed to exit the checkpoint through the Customs Green Channel. When stopped for checks at the channel, the e-receipt can be shown as a proof of tax payment to the inspecting officer.

Passing through the checkpoints is thus more seamless and efficient with the Customs@SG app, providing travellers with a better service experience in their interactions with Singapore Customs.

A web application is also available for travellers who prefer to make the declaration and payment online through their own computers.

With the Customs@SG app, travellers can declare and pay duty and/or GST for their goods on-the-go without making an additional stop at the Customs Tax Payment Office or Self-Service Tax Payment Kiosk.

Besides duty/tax declaration and payment, the Customs@SG mobile app also has other useful features such as a Tip-Off module, which allows members of the public to provide tip-offs on suspected illegal cigarette peddling activities.

There is also a Feedback module for the public to provide feedback or send queries to Singapore Customs. i

Travellers and members of the public can download Customs@SG from Apple App Store and Google Play, while the web application can be accessed via the Singapore Customs website (www.customs.gov.sg).

MORE CASES OF CONTRABAND CIGARETTE SMUGGLING THROUGH AIR COURIER CONSIGNMENTS

Compared to the six cases detected in 2014, 27 cases were detected in 2015.

A total of 11,125 cartons and 535 packets of contraband cigarettes were recovered from such air courier consignments. The duty and Goods and Services Tax (GST) evaded exceeded S$957,000.

In one of these cases, four male Chinese nationals – Liu Xiaofeng, 30; Huang Kejun, 33; Li Xiaolong, 27; and Su Wei, 30 – were arrested on 4 February 2015 for their involvement in contraband cigarette activities.

Investigations revealed that Liu had instructed Huang to receive the air courier consignment containing the duty-unpaid cigarettes and store them in a private apartment in Geylang East Avenue 2. Liu would sell these cigarettes to Huang, Li and Su, who would resell them to their customers.

Duty-unpaid cigarettes, which were smuggled into Singapore through air courier consignments, were recovered from the private apartment in Geylang East Avenue 2.

A total of 1,168 cartons and 400 packets of duty-unpaid cigarettes were seized in this operation. The amount of duty and GST evaded exceeded $102,000. Liu, Huang, Li and Su were sentenced by the State Courts to 24 months, 22 months, 15 months, and six months of imprisonment respectively.

MORE IMPORTERS ATTEMPTING TO EVADE GST

Singapore Customs has observed an increasing number of importers who tried to evade or under-declare Goods and Services Tax (GST) on the importation of goods into Singapore. In 2015, 14 such offenders were prosecuted, up from nine in 2014.

These importers attempted to evade GST by using fictitious invoices with suppressed values to make import declarations to Singapore Customs. They were sentenced by the State Courts to fines ranging from $4,000 to $156,000.

In one such case, Chen Yew Kit, 36, a partner of C&C Moto Factory LLP, was caught for under-declaring the values in the import declarations submitted to Singapore Customs.

Between January 2014 and April 2015, Chen imported an assortment of motorcycle accessories from the United Kingdom and Taiwan. He instructed his suppliers to create fictitious invoices with suppressed values. He submitted his import declarations to Singapore Customs based on the suppressed values stated in those invoices.

The under-declaration of the import values of the goods resulted in a shortfall of about $9,040 in GST payment. Chen was sentenced to a fine of $54,000 by the State Courts on 30 July 2015.

Remaining Business-Friendly for Traders

Singapore Customs was recognised for its pro-enterprise efforts, ranking 7th out of 28 agencies in the Pro-Enterprise Ranking Survey, and taking home the Public Sector Pro-Enterprise Initiative Award (Silver) for an initiative that helps air express companies.

PRO-ENTERPRISE RANKING SURVEY 2015

Singapore Customs was ranked 7th out of 28 agencies in the Pro-Enterprise Ranking Survey 2015. The annual survey is commissioned by the Pro-Enterprise Panel to assess government regulatory agencies on their pro-enterprise orientation. Agencies that perform well in the survey are presented with the Pro-Enterprise Panel-Singapore Business Federation (PEP-SBF) award.

Singapore Customs is honoured by this endorsement from the business community.

Over the years, Singapore Customs has implemented numerous business-friendly initiatives to make trade easy, fair and secure. We will continue to work closely with our partners in the business community to support Singapore's position as a global trade hub.

HELPING AIR EXPRESS COMPANIES MANAGE LATE SHIPMENTS

The initiative by a team of Singapore Customs officers won the 2015 Public Sector Pro-Enterprise Initiative Award (Silver).

Due to the time-sensitive nature of shipments handled by air express companies (AECs), these companies submit consolidated declarations covering multiple shipments to Singapore Customs before the shipments' arrival.

While most shipments arrive on time, some may arrive late due to various reasons. As the original permit covering the late shipments would have been used earlier to clear shipments that had arrived on schedule, late shipments were considered as imports without permits. Composition sums are then imposed on the AECs for these imports.

To resolve this issue, Singapore Customs worked with the AECs to develop a system to reconcile late shipments against the original permits declared. Where shipments can be accounted for under a previous permit, they would not be treated as offences.

The result is a relatively straightforward yet practical approach that uses reports to address the issue. No significant changes to the existing work processes were needed, which minimised disruption to the operations of the stakeholders involved.

TRADERS' SATISFACTION SURVEY 2015

Touchpoints	2014	2015
 Face-to-face interactions with Singapore Customs officers	5.23	5.30
 Secure Trade Partnership Programme	4.80	5.01
 Singapore Customs website	4.81	4.91
 TradeFIRST	4.99	4.69

As part of Singapore Customs' drive for continual service improvement, the agency regularly conducts the Traders' Satisfaction Survey to measure customers' satisfaction in their interactions with the agency, and better understand customers' experiences, needs and expectations.

Survey respondents provided their satisfaction rating on various touch points with Singapore Customs, such as the website, eServices, courses, call centre, procedures and requirements, schemes and certifications, as well as their overall satisfaction level.

The agency received an overall satisfaction mean score of 4.88 out of 6 from the respondents.

The agency did well for areas such as face-to-face interactions with Customs officers (which scored 5.30, up from 5.23 in 2014), Secure Trade Partnership Programme (which scored 5.01, up from 4.80 in 2014), and the Singapore Customs website (which scored 4.91, up from 4.81 in 2014).

Compliments were received, in particular, on the service and responsiveness of the staff. A trader said: "Our submissions are attended to and whenever we call Singapore Customs, officers are there to help us." Another trader commented: "My calls are attended to and most of my questions are resolved."

However, satisfaction for TradeFIRST showed a decrease of 0.30 from 4.99 in 2014 to 4.69 in 2015. Singapore Customs has noted this feedback and assures traders that the agency is currently reviewing the TradeFIRST self-assessment checklist and its processes, which are targeted to be implemented by Q2 2016.

Singapore Customs thanks the respondents for their valuable feedback and suggestions in this survey. The agency will continue to seek and address feedback as part of its continual service improvement.

The survey was held online from September to October 2015. About 700 responses were collected from respondents, who were categorised into four groups, namely importers/exporters/distributors, licensees, manufacturers, and declaring agents/freight forwarders.

The late shipment reports will help the AECs save almost $150,000 annually from not having to pay composition sums, and reduce the time spent on following up on offence cases with Singapore Customs.

With approximately 3,000 fewer cases to process annually, Singapore Customs stands to save some 4,500 man-hours and related cost savings.

The Singapore Customs team behind the initiative received the 2015 Public Sector Pro-Enterprise Initiative Award (Silver) from Parliamentary Secretary for Trade and Industry and Education Low Yen Ling at the PEP-SBF Awards Event on 25 November 2015.

Recognising Digital Customs Ambassadors

13 Singapore Customs officers were awarded the World Customs Organisation (WCO) Certificates of Merit this year for their commitment to the Digital Customs theme.

Every year on International Customs Day (ICD), World Customs Organisation Certificates of Merit are presented to customs officers who have contributed significantly in a particular area of customs work.

The theme for ICD 2016 is Digital Customs. In line with the theme, WCO shared a message with customs administrations worldwide, in which WCO Secretary-General Kunio Mikuriya said: "This new era of Digital Customs has transformed the way that customs operates. Ultimately, it enables progressive engagement – the enhanced ability of customs administrations to communicate, process goods, receive and exchange information, coordinate border activities, collaborate on law enforcement actions, and promote transparency. In Singapore Customs, 13 officers were recognised for their outstanding commitment to the Digital Customs theme in various aspects of their work.

Director-General Ho Chee Pong presented the Certificates of Merit to them during the ICD & Staff Appreciation Celebration on 26 January 2016.

Customs Advisory Council Members Gets First-Hand Look at Customs Operations

Customs Advisory Council (CAC) members visited the Customs Operation Command, Pasir Panjang Export Inspection Station, and PSA's Pasir Panjang Terminal.

Customs Advisory Council members observing Singapore Customs officers demonstrate the use of a borescope, a device used to detect contraband cigarettes concealed in "secret" compartments in a modified vehicle.

A Singapore Customs officer explains the scanning process at the Pasir Panjang Export Inspection Station.

Singapore Customs hosted a visit for the CAC members to the Customs Operations Command, Pasir Panjang Export Inspection Station, and PSA's Pasir Panjang Terminal last November. The visits enabled the members to gain a better understanding about Singapore Customs' enforcement capabilities and export scanning operations, as well as PSA's port operations.

The Customs Operations Command compound along Keppel Road houses officers from the enforcement branches of Singapore Customs. During the visit, the CAC members learnt about the history of the compound and Singapore Customs' enforcement functions. They also had the opportunity to try their hand at some of the specialised equipment used by Singapore Customs in enforcement efforts, such as the borescope, a device used to detect contraband cigarettes concealed in a "secret" compartment in modified vehicles.

At Singapore Customs' Pasir Panjang Export Inspection Station, the members had a close look at the scanning process, and found out how Singapore Customs uses x-ray machines to scan containers and analyse the images of goods inside the containers before they are exported.

At Pasir Panjang Terminal, PSA shared about their newly-implemented automated crane operations, which can be operated remotely to help increase productivity and port efficiency. The members were also brought on a short tour around the Pasir Panjang port to view the operations at the flow-through gate, where they saw the use of automation and biometric technology to facilitate export clearance and access into the port. Lending a Helping Hand

Singapore Customs reached out to the less fortunate through two initiatives last December to spread some love during the festive season.

FILL A BAG, FEED A FAMILY

Working with Food from the Heart for a second time, Singapore Customs officers helped to pack and distribute food goodie bags to less fortunate families in Ang Mo Kio.

Each bag contained essentials such as rice, cooking oil, Milo, instant noodles and canned food, packed according to the size of the needy families. The Singapore Customs volunteers then distributed the goodie bags to the homes of these families.

During the distribution, one of the beneficiaries raised a request to buy a walking stick at a subsidised rate and the volunteers helped to convey the request to the residents' committee.

BOYS' BRIGADE SHARE-A-GIFT

Singapore Customs officers raised more than $1,600, which was used to purchase a total of 254 units of canned food and beverages, and 158 bottles of condiments and cooking oil for the Boys' Brigade Share-a-Gift project.

The donations reached out to some 7,400 households who are receiving assistance from Government-funded ComCare programmes and 216 voluntary welfare organisations. i
